Prayer during the Vacancy

God our Father,

You call us to be the body of Christ here.

Send your Holy Spirit at this time of change;

Fill us with vision, energy

And faithfulness in prayer.

May this vacancy be a time of

Deeper love and fellowship,

As you guide us with your heavenly wisdom.

Help us to choose the one

Who will share with us in your perfect plans.

In the name of Jesus Christ our Lord.

Amen

THE JUNIOR APPRENTICE - 2018

We were delighted to be invited to interview the two candidates this year, Megan Burney and Anjola Osinaike. We enjoyed the experience very much and want to say how impressed we were with the way in which they both performed and the very excellent financial results of the efforts.

Anjola - TLC (Milkshakes and snacks)

Anjola used a very simple business model, taking ready prepared materials and turning them into an attractive and sought-after product. It was clear that she had given careful thought to what she was going to do and had spotted a gap in the market for children's drinks. The fact that the product was also attractive to adults was a happy spin-off.

The product itself was delicious and refreshing and, perhaps most important of all in these days when health is so important, natural. There was a good choice of different flavours and textures – some with fruit and juice, others with milk or ice cream. The amount provided was generous and the service was efficient and cheerful. We were particularly impressed by the biscuits on sale – extraordinarily good value at 50p.

It was clear at the time of the interview that the business had been very profitable and we were pleased to note that the charity being supported (Demelza House) had a very special connection with Anjola and her family. All in all, this was a very good enterprise and we commend Anjola very warmly.

Megan – (Meggie makes)

Megan's business was quite a complicated one with a range of different products and varying prices. We were impressed by the market research which Megan had undertaken before launching her first products and by the way in which she continued to refine and add to the product range. At the time of the interview there was a dizzying range of badges on sale and it was clear that Megan had grasped the idea of success in business depending on giving the customer what they want.

Megan's pricing showed some discernment in producing a range of badges aimed at a younger market at a lower price, while still providing excellent value with her normal product line.

Megan told us of the problems she encountered with early products and we were delighted to see how she had overcome the practical difficulties with the pins.

The service at Megan's stall was cheerful and efficient and she deployed her staff effectively to deal with a rush of customers.

Her choice of charity (Bliss) was very appropriate and we congratulate her on a distinctive and profitable enterprise.

Conclusion

The two enterprises were very different in concept and style and because both have performed so splendidly we want to make them joint winners. Thank you for the chance to see such marvellous work from them both.

Lady Andrea and Lord David
